Last issue by email

This is the last issue of the newsletter you will receive directly by e-mal.

I will be working with Rob Coomer, our web-site owner to make this change. Unless any technical issues arise, the newsletter will, starting with this issue, be available on the web site. A notification will be e-mailed to you when the latest issue is published.

As discussed in the last two club meetings, this change is made to simplify the communication process and further emphasize the web site as the information access point. For the few members with computer problems or for those not wanting to use the computer for this purpose, I will bring a few hard copies of the newsletter to our club meetings.

A small change to the news letter: we are no longer showing phone numbers of any members. This is a security measure. With the newsletter available to non-members on the club web site, we want to avoid sharing personal information.

Nature night in June.

This was like the "good old days" with lots and lots of slides and very few prints. Where did all these slides come from? For one thing, it tells us perhaps that the slide era is not over and there is still a strong interest in the club for slide competition. At the same time, where were all the digital folks with their prints? I can only blame myself for not bringing any, but next time...

Rob Coomer's web site

If you get this newsletter you will also have received the invitation from Rob to visit his personal web site. If you haven't checked it out yet, do it now. Truly a great site.

Next lecture event

Bob Ihrig is putting on his program at the Pictorial night on Friday with a hands-on session on Saturday. For those who have one, bring your laptop with Photoshop on Saturday. For folks without a laptop, don't worry. There should be enough units to share. Do remember to bring scanned images you can work with.
